We were on the boat cruising along the New River when we came across the most amazing bird I'd have ever seen. This bird was a large raptor, its body was a beautiful rufous coloration, its head a creamy white accented by its black collar. It was no other than the Black-collared Hawk, a bird I never knew existed until that day. That bird had sparked my interest in birds when I got back home the first thing I did was go and buy my first field guide, the Birds of Belize by H. Lee Jones.
