The 780 is really a different animal. The gears on a 770 are lighter than a 780, friend of mine was looking for the lay shaft for a 770 and was given one from a 780 but discovered that the 780 one was bigger and longer. The 880 shares the same engine as the 780 but there the similarity in these models end. The 880 has the same gearbox as the 990.

I was always under the impression that the David Brown 780 was identical to the 770 apart from its higher capacity engine, the 780's engine is actually the 46 hp engine taken from the 880. However, am I right in saying that the 780 has a two speed PTO where as the 770 is fitted with a single speed unit? What is the history here? Are PTO parts interchangeable between a 880, 780 ...
