___7.Instructional rubrics provide students with more informative feedback about their strengths and areas in need of improvement than traditional forms of assessment do and allow their learning to become more focused and self-directed. ___8.Instructional rubrics are developed when the performance task is developed and may involve both the learners

Developing Rubrics for Performance-Based Assessment

1 A Checklist Is Not a Rubric. A checklist is a set of criteria teachers provide to ensure students understand how to fulfill all requirements of an assignment. For example, before submitting a research report for grading, a student can refer to a list of components the teacher needs in the final project, such as Title Page, Report, Maps or Tables and Bibliography.

Checklists are good indicators of “can do–can’t do” and “done–not done,” but are less informative than scaled rubrics when assigning a grade. In general, checklists are not used to indicate the relative quality of a product or performance. Advantages. Easy to construct and use. Align closely with tasks.
