We hoped that as written texts these homilies would also be useful to those responsible for Sunday liturgy, to discussions formal and informal, to parish staff hoping to better understand and express the place of liturgy and the place of preaching in the whole life of the assembly.

Homilies

On Remembrance Sunday, in part at least we think of what happens when arguments cannot be lived with. We think of those times when arguments have gone beyond words. When evil has had to be confronted. Remembering with "thanksgiving and sorrow those whose lives, in world wars and conflicts past and present, have been given and taken away.!"

Short. My sermons are of varying lengths - from 3 minutes up to 45. It all depends on the kind of service and what is appropriate. However, if I'm preaching an expository sermon on a Sunday morning, I'm usually around about 20-22 minutes. On Remembrance Day, here, 10 minutes needs to be the absolute upper limit.
