Vietnam is over 1,000km (600 miles) in length and has huge regional diversity making it a year-round destination for travel. We spent the month of June travelling from the South to the North and apart from boiling hot days, we weren't affected by any form of bad weather (except Sapa, but hey a little rain never hurt anyone).

Vietnam tends to be a destination that travelers either love or hate. It's extremely inexpensive and historically complex, but incredibly hot and humid almost year round. Thick, verdant jungles and high mountains mix with serene surfing beaches like China Beach — whether you decide it's worth a second trip or not, it is most definitely worth visiting at least once.

Vietnam is definitely still one of the most affordable countries to travel in Asia. But, as with anything, your budget depends hugely on your travel style. Frugal backpackers should budget about 40 USD / 31 GBP a day, those in the mid-range are looking at 60 – 100 USD / 46-78 GBP per day and if you ' re going luxury, then anything from 200 USD / 155 GBP up can be expected.

Việt Nam has a long torrid history of royals, colonial overthrows, and war. We always enjoy learning about the culture and history of the places we travel. Yet as Americans in Vietnam, the learning process was bitter-sweet. Throughout our trip, we were told the other side of the story of what we call the Vietnam War. We saw areas that are still recovering from the aftermath of a war that ended over forty years ago, and people with mutations from Agent Orange.
